Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

WE LOVES HER THE BEST.

In all her gracious loveliness
She stooped and gave a fond caress
Unto the lad with curls of gold,
Who had been gently kissed and told
This lady was to be a mother
To him and his wee baby brother.

That night, unmindful of the bride,
He stole unto his father's side;
Upon his knee he climbed and said,
With tearful eyes and low bent head:
"Our new mamma is sweet and kind
And good; but, if you wouldn't mind,

"Dear papa, me and little brother
Would rather have our other mother,
The one who went away one day;
Nurse says 'twas just a year last May
(A sigh escaped the tiny breast),
'Coz, papa, we loves her the best."
—Pearson's Weekly.

A CURIOUS COURTSHIP.

HOW A GIRL DROVE AWAY A WORTHY LOVER AND WAS SORRY.

"If I go, Rosalie," Harry Reynolds said, "remember that I shall not return." He made a step toward her and continued, "Have you not a word for me, Rosalie?"

"I do not think of anything further that I wish to say," she responded coldly.

Harry gazed at her a moment and then rushed from the room.

"Cold hearted, selfish girl!" he exclaimed.

For a few seconds after his departure Rosalie retained her indifferent position, but all her senses were alive to catch his lightest movement. Of course he would return, and when he behaved properly and asked her pardon and submissively he should have it, but to be lectured and scolded in that manner was more than she would bear. In vain did she listen. An hour, then two, then three hours passed by, and sick at heart Rosalie went up to her room and cried herself to sleep.

Rosalie was warm hearted and quick tempered, but was easily appeased. She was also passionately fond of admiration and quite as much bent on having her own way as was good for her. These faults, however, did not prevent the village beaus from being at her disposal, and hitherto she had been nearly impartial in her treatment of them, having no mind to give up the general homage by fixing upon one.

But lately there had been a difference in her feelings. She had acknowledged there was a charm in Harry Reynolds' attentions such as she had never found in any other. A thrill new and delicious went through her when their eyes met, and she read the admiration which he vainly tried to repress. Harry had a high ideal of womanly excellence which Rosalie by no means came up to, but in spite of her frivolities and his own misgivings they were frequently together and fast verging toward an explanation when that destiny which appears to delight in the annoyance of lovers introduced an element of discord into their happiness.

Mr. Clarence Dalton came up from the city on a visit to his uncle. He was handsome, agreeable, wealthy and noted for the careful elegance of his attire. The girls were enchanted with him, and Rosalie alone regarded him with seeming indifference. She said to herself with virtuous resolution, she must be careful now. Harry might be wounded if she received attentions from such a lion.

Happy for her had this prudent disposition lasted. But the old spirit came up after awhile. She was entirely accustomed to queening it in her little world, and her vanity was piqued that Mr. Dalton did not at all seem struck by her charms. It was quite a Christian duty to give Mr. Dalton a lesson in good taste. So by a few little feminine lures, such as a pretty girl well knows how to practice, he was attracted to her side, and once there he seemed exceedingly well pleased to stay.

Harry could endure it no longer and in the interview whose close we have portrayed determined to "put his fortune to the touch to win or lose it all." Conscious of her power, indignant, with some justice, that he should assume to dictate her conduct when he had never openly declared his love, Rosalie had responded by a series of flippant, exasperating little speeches which drove Harry almost to despair. She intended to relent in time, but pride, vanity and a certain triumph in knowing that his whole manly heart was hers to play with at will wrought sad mischief.

Rosalie had no doubt that Harry would come the next evening as usual and all could easily be made right again. But the evening came and went and no Harry. What could it mean? Surely he loved her, and if so he could not stay away. She would wait patiently since it was all that she could do.

The next evening Mr. Dalton called, but Rosalie sent down word that she was ill and asked to be excused. Yet as night after night went by and Harry did not return her submissive mood changed. She would show Mr. Harry Reynolds that she was not suffering from the withdrawal of his presence. There were other people quite delighted to be in her company.

The next time Mr. Dalton came she did not decline to see him, but came down and was as friendly and pleasant as could be desired. The young man noticed a more womanly thoughtfulness in her manner than he had hitherto observed and wondered what might be the cause.

Poor Harry's state meanwhile was far from enviable. For the first 24 hours he maintained a fierce resentment. But as the days came and went he softened little by little until every harsh sentiment had vanished and a determination seized him to seek Rosalie and try to efface the memory of his previous sternness.

Toward evening he wended his way to her home with the sweetest anticipations of reconciliation and affection. With every step she seemed to grow lovelier and dearer than before. But as he neared the gate a sight met his eyes which speedily cooled down the fervid tones of his fancy painting. It was Mr. Dalton assisting Rosalie to dismount from her horse. The exercise had brought a bright flush to her cheek, and she was fairly dazzling. She perceived Harry in time to bestow on him a very distant bow and then turned, with added empressment, to her companion. Harry changed his intentions at once, walked by the house in the most leisurely and indifferent manner and proceeded to call upon that obnoxious Nellie Kellis, whom Rosalie regarded so superciliously.

Mr. Dalton meanwhile found his affairs in a somewhat perplexing state. Flirtation had been since his eleventh year the element in which he delighted to exist. Matrimony with its cares and responsibilities was to him the most distant of prospects and must offer extra inducements to make him forsake his freedom. Now, however, he began to feel himself very seriously interested in a person who had not one claim to fashion, family or fortune—a little village girl who wore dresses of her own fitting and made all the pies and cakes that appeared on her table. Whether she really cared for him or regarded him as a friend or simply as an admirer was impossible to say.

Other people were not slow in drawing their conclusions, and before three weeks were over the village authorities in such cases declared it would be a match.

Harry could not in his heart deny the reasonableness of their predictions. He had the grief of believing that his wishes, hopes and affections were nothing to Rosalie. Yet had he anything but his own harshness to blame for the change? He was miserable, but his own act had caused the misery.

Mr. Dalton had a mother living, a stately lady of some forty odd years, well preserved and a leader of society. Clarence was her only boy and the object of a great many ambitious dreams. The marriage which looked to her so misty and far away was to her a very near reality. She had selected a girl of his rank for a wife, when, lo, there came a rumor that struck her to the heart. Could it be that Clarence was about to make a fool of himself? She wrote a letter to her son in which she expressed perfect confidence in his discretion and her assurance that he would do nothing foolish or imprudent.

Mr. Clarence's brow as he read the maternal effusion was clouded with thought. Where, in the name of common sense, could there be any danger in a marriage with such a charming girl as Rosalie Ames? As for the danger of her heart, he wished he were a little surer of it. He felt at that moment that his own was in a much more perilous position than hers.

As Harry walked that afternoon along the broad road leading from his house he was attracted by almost inarticulate groans, and looking a few yards into the distance he saw a senseless form lying in his path, while a mad horse dashed furiously down the road. As he drew nearer he recognized the dark, tasteful riding suit which he had seen Dalton wear so often before. And passing from the clothing his eyes rested upon the face, pale as death, of the unconscious man.

Good and bad angels tugged at Harry's soul for one moment in a mortal conflict. What call had he to interfere in his behalf? The sneering fop who had blighted all his hopes! Let him stay there and die. But in the next moment, forgetting all but the welfare of his fellow being, he snatched off his overcoat and raised Dalton's head and rested it upon it. Then, with frantic haste, he summoned aid, and all that skill and care could do was employed for the sufferer's restoration. Harry hung over him, pale and agonized, the accusing voice ever ringing in his ears. "God forgive me!" he cried. "That wicked delay."

At last signs of returning life were visible, and ere long the physicians assured the watchers round that all was hopeful. Rest and good nursing alone were needed.

Harry quietly stole away and resumed his walk. Wandering thus, quite forgetful of the outer world, he encountered a well known form—Rosalie stood in his path, her cheeks pallid, her eyes swollen with weeping. She did not seek to avoid him, but seemed waiting for him to speak. He took her hand. She did not withdraw it. He felt that she knew all.

"Don't hate me," he said. "I deserve no credit. I almost turned to leave him, for hatred and jealousy had possession of me, and if he had died I should have been his murderer. But it was for you, Rosalie. I loved you so! For I have saved him only to render certain the destruction of my own happiness."

Rosalie looked up at him with brimming eyes. "I don't see why," she said softly. "I am sure that nobody wishes to make you unhappy."

Now, I cannot say whether this statement appears particularly lucid, but Harry was clever enough to understand it instantly. All the troubles, trials and misgivings of the last few weeks dispersed like mists before the sun, and content took the place of wretchedness in those two reunited hearts.

Clarence Dalton made a very stylish best man at the wedding of his preserver, and, judging from his devoted manner to the maid of honor, he did not suffer irremediably from his loss. As for his mother, she blesses to this day the friendly accident that saved her darling from so terrible a misalliance. —Brooklyn Citizen.

Uncle Bob's Hailstone Story.

"An old countryman I used to know when I was living in south Georgia," remarked a college professor apropos of sudden changes in the weather, "was in at least one respect a very remarkable character. To a casual listener he appeared to be a fluent and unconscionable liar, yet when you came to scrutinize any of his statements closely it was impossible to catch him in the slightest deviation from the truth."

"One day in early spring we had an unusually severe fall of hail, and next morning while driving down the road with a friend we happened to encounter the old fellow at his gate. 'Well, Uncle Bob,' I said, 'that was a pretty bad hailstorm we had yesterday.' 'I should say it was,' he replied. 'You just oughter seed some of the stones that come down in my back yard.' 'How big were they?' I asked. ''Bout as big as small watermelons,' said he. 'Well, we've caught him in a whopper at last,' chuckled my friend as we drove on. 'No, we haven't,' I groaned. 'As usual the old rascal has secured all the advantage of a fine, large lie and at the same time has adhered rigidly to the truth. Look at that vine.'

"An early watermelon vine was festooning the bottom rail of a fence by the roadside, and here and there it was studded with minute green spheres about the size of gooseberries. My friend made no comment. I never tried to catch Uncle Bob again."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Arab's Parlor.

A woman traveler in Egypt is amazed at the dearth of the natives' household goods, says a correspondent of the Chicago News. There is little furniture because the Arab needs little. His life is spent out of doors, and he can sleep in any handy gutter as peaceably and happily as a child, while most of his meals are eaten in the open air.

In one exceptionally luxurious house, that of a charwoman, the traveler found a parlor. It was regarded as a sort of shrine by Fatima. She had made it a fetich, devoting to its embellishment all the money she could spare and sacrificing to it even her children's wants. The visitor was shown through a broken down doorway into a squalid passage, where two rooms at either end revealed perspectives of greater squalor beyond. Children teemed from every entrance.

Arrived at the holy of holies, the door had to be unlocked. It was a brand new Birmingham lock. Distant Manchester had supplied a carpet blazing with roses and small creton curtains of brilliancy to match. Such things are in Cairo called "fellah" (vulgar), as none but fellahin are found to be purchasers of them, but poor Fatima's horrors are not yet quite catalogued. From some common shop in the Muski she had captured two or three glass vases, and in them—the last touch of triumph—were artificial flowers.

Camels In Water.

Camels cannot swim. They are very buoyant, but ill balanced, and their heads go under water. They can, however, be taught to swim rivers with the aid of goatskins or jars fastened under their necks. During the Baluchistan expedition of 1898 the camels were lowered into the sea from the ships, and their drivers, plunging overboard, clambered on to the backs of their charges, causing the animals' heads to come up, and thus assisted they were successfully piloted ashore.

Objectionable Features.

Naggus—I have read your speech, Borus, and, to tell the truth, I don't like its physiognomy.

Borus—Its physiognomy? What do you mean?

Naggus—Its I's are too close together.—Chicago Tribune.

A Country Lass,

Health in her beaming eyes, health in her glowing cheek, health in her merry laugh. Yet country air and country hours can't save her from the common experience of women—an experience which dulls the eye, pales the cheek, and turns the laugh to a sigh. Womanly ills come to almost all. But for these ills there is help and healing in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, stops unhealthy drains, cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"Miss Ella Sapp, of Jamestown, Guilford Co., N. C., writes: "I had suffered three years or more at monthly periods. It seemed as though I would die with pain in my back and stomach. I could not stand without fainting; had given up all hope of ever being cured, when one of my friends insisted upon my trying Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. With but little faith I tried it, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt better—had better appetite and slept better. Now I am happy to say I am entirely cured, and all done in two months' time, when all other medicines had failed to do any good at all."

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The Weather and Grapes.

ROBT. HALL, local U. S. Signal officer, on Thursday morning last, hoisted the blue flag, which is a sure sign of rain. Although a falling barometer and every indication pointed to a storm it promptly cleared off, much to the relief of Sonoma Valley vineyardists who are rushing things to get their grapes picked before the rainy season sets in. Grape picking and winemaking will be over in this valley in another week. The weather since winemaking commenced has been very favorable and the vintage of 1900 will be more than excellent.

IN the form of a preliminary report concerning observations at the Paris Exposition W. H. Mills Tuesday gave practical advice to the State Board of Trade. He said that the proper things for Californians to do were to send fruit pulp abroad, for which there is a practically unlimited market in Europe; devote attention to the forcing of fruits for winter use in the New York market; send to the Pan-American Exhibition to be held at Buffalo a corps of from ten to twenty men competent to answer all questions concerning the resources, climate and population of California. Concerning the forcing of fruits for the New York winter market, Mr. Mills said that Europeans were making large money marketing winter grown fruits in New York, and in his opinion California could get that trade. In one place abroad he saw a frut-forcing plant, the dimensions of which were 200 by 15 feet. Yet the money value of the product in the market equaled the selling value of fifty acres of grapes in California. Forced peaches bring $2 each in Paris in winter, and bunches of grapes sell for $1.50 each. The climate is such that fires have to be used six months in the year, whereas in California fruit would ripen under glass whenever the sun shines.

SUPERVISOR PUTNAM was in town Thursday looking after his political interests as the Republican nominee for re-election. Mr. Putnam has filled the office very acceptably the past four years and has given us the best roads we ever had, but for all that he has been unable to suit everybody. It is a hard thing to give every man a job on the public roads, don't you know.

SCHELLVILLE SIFTINGS

Wild geese have made their appearance in the marshes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Van Every were the guests Saturday of Peter Hein.

Wm. Gilbert was seen here Sunday. He was after the elusive duck and got "soup."

Robt. Howe and Constable Chas Ohm were among Schellville's visitors to the metropolis last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kleversahl and family of San Francisco visited Embarcadero several days last week.

Lou Green was seen hunting near this place Sunday. He bagged several fine ducks during his day's outing.

Ed. Murray, a member of the San Francisco Fire Department, spent Sunday last with his friend Edward Gombert.

Hartley Gottenberg and Bailey Birdsall spent Sunday shooting ducks in the marshes near the drawbridge.

On the opening day of the duck season members of the Alameda Gun Club bagged 700 ducks on their baited preserves near McGill's station.

Miss Bell Landsborough of Locust Grove chaperoned a number of young people to the party given last week at the Agua Caliente Hotel.

Mrs. Stademan and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schou and family, who have been spending a week in Embarcadero, left for their home in San Francisco this morning.

Alex. Martin, Secretary of the Schellville Rod and Gun Club, denies the report that the Club members have been notified to keep off the tule lands on the Schell place. He says that his club has the exclusive right to shoot on that marsh for five years, and that the members will continue to hunt there every season until the term of the lease expires.

All except bad ones!

There are hundreds of cough medicines which relieve coughs, all coughs, except bad ones! The medicine which has been curing the worst of bad coughs for 60 years is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Here is evidence:

"My wife was troubled with a deep-seated cough on her lungs for three years. One day I thought of how Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved the life of my sister after the doctors had all given her up to die. So I purchased two bottles, and it cured my wife completely. It took only one bottle to cure my sister. So you see that three bottles (one dollar each) saved two lives. We all send you our heartfelt thanks for what you have done for us."—J. H. BURGE, Macon, Col., Jan. 13, 1899.

Now, for the first time you can get a trial bottle of Cherry Pectoral for 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

Fortunately the reverened gentleman escaped without a scratch. After straightening things out he remarked to a party who witnessed the mishap: "Don't let that 'U No' know about this as he will put it in the paper." Therefore we concluded to keep mum.

El Verano, Oct. 14th, 1900.

A Strike that Failed.

The seventeen winemakers and grape-pickers who struck for higher wages on the Hearst ranch last week are out of a job. Manager John Lounibos secured a new force of men and winemaking has been in full blast on the ranch all the week. A number of the striking workmen had been employed on the ranch for years and when these together with the new hands stood up the manager of the ranch with a demand for higher wages they aroused the ire of manager John Lounibos, who claims that the men sought to take an unfair advantage of him and he said every grape could rot on the place before he would be coerced into acceding to the demands of his employees. The strikers on their part contend that they were getting 75 cents a day and found, which they claimed was 25 cents less than they ought to have received.

The Catholic Fair has been in progress at Union Hall since last Wednesday evening and it is needless to say that it has proven a success. The hall has presented an annimated scene every night with the prettily decorated booths, active young lady workers and the speelers at the wheel of fortune. To-night the fair closes with a fine program and raffling of the many handsome prizes.

How We Use Up Our Forests.

It is estimated that it takes twenty-two acres of spruce land to furnish enough wood pulp paper to run a large metropolitan daily just two days. The writer makes this statement deplores the time, when, at this rate, our forests will entirely disappear, and paper be as scarce and dear as it was before wood pulp was invented. Meantime, the art of printing continues in full force, because there are many truths the world should know; among others, that Hosteter's Stomach Bitters is a cure for all diseases of the stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, constipatson, biliousness, insomania, nervousness. There is no need of anyone to suffer from these ailments, as this famous medicine has been the standard remedy of the American people for fifty years, and a cure is sure to follow its steady use. Do not accept a substitute. The genuine has a Private Revenue Stamp over the neck of bottle.

JOHN MILLER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Inhales Gas Through a Rubber Tube.

John Miller, for many years a resident of this place but who has been employed as foreman of Harvey Manuel's livery stable, 15 Steuart street, San Francisco, attempted to commit suicide last Monday about the noon hour. He told the hostlers in the stable that he was going to luncheon. His long absence attracted the attention of the stable hands and a search was instituted for him. Two hours after he disappeared he was found in the stable loft in an unconscious condition. He lay prone on the floor with a rubber tube in his mouth which he had connected with a gas jet. The escaping gas attracted the men to the loft just in time to save Miller's lite. The patrol wagon was rung up and the unconscious man was taken to the Harbor Hospital and it took the doctors two hours to revive him.

Just previous to attempting to shuffle off Miller appeared to be in good spirits and what sudden freak possessed him to attempt to take his own life is known only to himself.

Maxwell's Orchestra.

Last Tuesday evening the first rehearsal of Maxwell's orchestra this season was held in the Congregational Church. No rehearsels have been held for the past three months as many of the members are farmers and fruit-growers and during the busy season of harvest they have no time to spare from business affairs. Now, however, that harvest is over rehearsels will be regularly held and the members of the orchestra look forward to a long and successful season. There was a full attendance at the rehearsal and much interest manifested, and with the benefit of last year's practice and experience some excellent musical results may be expected. People will look forward with pleasure and interest to the announcement of the first appearance again in public of this orchestra.

A Petrified Curiosity.

A. A. Enke of the Union Hotel has on exhibition a rare curiosity. It is a solid piece of basalt rock about six cubic inches square in which is embedded two petrified clams. The clams look as natural as those just taken out of a mud flat on San Pablo bay. The curiosity was found in the hills between this place and Napa. The clams, although of a prehistoric age, are in size and shape the exact counterpart of the salt water clam of to-day. Who will now deny that primitive man did not enjoy his clam chowder with all avidity of the genus homo of these days?

Sudden Death of a Vallejo Township Farmer.

Charles Potter, a well known rancher of Lakeville, was discovered in a dying condition in Petaluma Sunday evening and expired a few hours afterward without regaining consciousness. He was subject to fits and while riding into town it is supposed he was suddenly seized with an epileptic fit, fell from the cart and striking on his head fractured his skull. The doctors claim, however, that there was no fracture—that the fit caused death. He was the owner of an 800-acre ranch near Lakeville and was well-known in this part of the county.

Foreclosed.

H. Francis Anderson of San Francisco has brought suit in the Superior Court of this county against Thomas F. Monahan, Mary H. Monahan and Catherine Monahan to recover the sum $1700 and $117 interest and attorney's fees. The property involved is located on First street West south of Napa street, consisting of three cottages and eight or ten acres of land. Gavin McNab of San Francisco is the attorney for plaintiff.

More Hot Water at Agua Rica.

S. Schocken, who has the contract for sinking a seven-inch artesian well at Agua Rica, has struck at a depth of thirty feet a subterranean stream of hot mineral water. Boring will continue with the expectation of developing a flowing well that will eclipse the several other flowing wells and springs on the place. Capt. and Mrs. Boyes, the owners of the property, say that thousands of bathers visited the resort the past season.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Little Five-Year Old Annie Fisheer Fatally Burned.

Five-year-old Annie Fisheer, the little grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisheer of this place, died Tuesday night in great agony from the effects of burns received on the afternoon of that day.

It appears that the little tot while at play with Russell Colton, the five-year-old son of a neighbor, became possessed of some matches. These she gave to the little boy and repairing to the back yard of the Fisheer residence the children gathered up some old papers and ignited them with the matches. The flame from the papers set fire to Annie's dress and she ran screaming toward the house. Mrs. Fisheer immediately went to the rescue of her granddaughter, and met her just as she reached a corner of the house. Tearing off her own dress Mrs. Fisheer wrapped it around the child, who by this time was enveloped in flames, and succeeded in subduing them, but not before the clothes were almost entirely burned off the little one's body. Mrs. Fisheer was badly burned about the hands in her heroic endeavors to put out the flames.

Dr. Rich was summoned and upon examining the little sufferer found that she had been frightfully burned from head to foot and that she had also inhaled the flames. He did all in his power to alleviate the pain of the unfortunate child—to save her life was impossible, so terrible were the burns—and at 9:30 o'clock the same evening death relieved little Annie of her sufferings.

At the time of the accident the little one's mother was absent in San Francisco, but in response to a telegram reached her baby's bedside a few hours before she passed away.

Little Annie Fisheer was born in Tiburon, Marin county, five years ago and was an only child. The mother, Mrs. Annie Fisheer, is nearly distracted with grief.

The funeral took place Wednesday, the remains being interred in the Catholic cemetery.

THE BITER BIT.

Judge Cheney Dispenses Justice in Glen Ellen.

P. Giusti, recently employed on the Chauvet ranch near Glen Ellen, appeared before Judge Cheney, one day last week, and swore to a complaint against F. Farnochi, proprietor of the Toscano Hotel, Glen Ellen, and also Pacifico Bacci, charging both men with battery. Officer Ohm, armed with the warrant, went to Glen Ellen on Friday of last week and arrested the men. On Monday last the accused were brought before Judge Cheney in that place for trial. As there was not an iota of evidence against Farnochi and Bacci the Judge very properly discharged the defendants.

Farnochi then turned the tables on Guisti and had him arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace.

After listening to the evidence in this latter case Judge Cheney found Giusti guilty as charged and sentenced him to pay a fine of $60 or go to jail for 60 days.

Being short of "dough" Giusti had no other alternative than to go to jail.

There was bad blood existing between Giusti and Farnochi on account of money matters and at the time the former had the latter arrested his trunk was being held by the hotel man for money due him for board and lodging.

Fine Beef Cattle.

Henry Weber of the Central Market is giving his customers some of the finest beef ever sold in this place. Last week he purchased between twenty and thirty fine fat beef steers from manager "Baldy" Hamilton of the Senator Jones ranch. Cattle from this ranch are said to be the finest in this State.

Henry T. Shidden was tendered a reception by a number of his friends at the Agua Caliente Hotel on Thursday evening of last week. Dancing was the main feature of the evening. Part of the Sonoma Orchestra furnished excellent music. After tripping the light fantastic for several hours all were invited into the spacious dining room where a fine spread awaited them. During the repast speeches were made by prominent guests present, who welcomed Mr. Shidden. Although only one year among the people of Sonoma Valley Mr Shidden has made many warm friends since coming from the East. After supper dancing continued until 3 o'clock A. M., when "Home Sweet Home" reminded all of the ending of one of the jolliest affairs held for some time.

Mrs. Ellen Cassebohm was in town Thursday.

Miss Minnie Cook and her sister contemplate moving into the Henry Bates cottage located next door to the public school.

Miss Zarifa Howe, daughter of Hon. Robt. Howe, has accepted a position as teacher at the California Home for Feeble Minded Children. The young lady entered upon the discharge of her duties October 1st.

Card of Thanks.

We take this method of thanking those kind friends and neighbors who with their aid and sympathy did so much to lighten our burdens caused by the death of our dear little daughter and granddaughter.

ENGLISH AS SHE'S WRITTEN

A Telegram That Nearly Prostrated a Washington Man.

A lamentable unfamiliarity with English as she is idiomatically "spoke" on her native heath is responsible for a bad quarter of an hour which a certain young lawyer of this town will not soon forgot. His wife has most pronouncedly correct tastes in everything, including dress. Such of her gowns as do not come direct from London town are built in New York by the most correct of English man milliners. When she made ready to go to Long Branch last summer, the young wife laid in a supply of clothes that should dazzle the natives. Her English man milliner was, however, provokingly slow about delivering things, and she was forced to set off without several of the frocks she had intended taking with her. For the first week after she went away she wrote to her devoted husband at home every day. For the second week she wrote every other day. In the third week four days passed without a line from her. On the fifth day a telegram was delivered at the young lawyer's office.

"Wife's body forwarded this morning."

The signature was a scrawl, but the message was enough to chill the very marrow of that young husband's bones. It had been sent from New York. He saw, in his mind's eye, his dainty little wife running up to town for a day's shopping. He thought of the frightful heat. He knew just how it had all come about, and with a horror stricken face he dashed out into the street and fairly ran to the house of his wife's sister to acquaint her with the frightful news. He was past speech when he reached the house, but he held out the fatal telegram. The sister read it.

"Well," said she, "it's time he sent it. She's been expecting it for six weeks. It's the one that goes with the pink chiffon skirt, I suppose."—Washington Post.

COOLING DRINKS IN TURKEY.

Beverages and Ices Sold on All the Main Streets.

On all the main streets nearly every other shop has a counter of white marble and large bottles of iced water, lemonade, cherry sirup, pomegranate sirup or something of the sort. Green leaves surround the bottles, and a little machine keeps up a tinkling of glasses to attract the passersby. Certain shops are known for their specialties in certain sirups and others for their water, about which Turks are very particular and can tell at once from which of the many springs near the capital it comes. The streets swarm with itinerant sellers with elaborate arrangements for keeping the water cold. Some have a regular booth where they dispense anything from water to a gazelle, which is the name for effervescing lemonade.

The simplest method is that adopted by those who carry about a huge glass bottle holding about two gallons of lemonade on the mouth of which is balanced a large lump of ice, continually dripping into the bottle. These drinks are the cheapest, one farthing a tumbler. Unfortunately the coin representing a farthing is almost extinct, so that the drinker has to drink two glasses or come back next day for the balance. The ice cream venders, too, must not be forgotten. Their picturesque get up is very distinctive, and they do a roaring trade. The ices they sell are very pure, and one never hears of cases of illness among those eating them. The time when the men do their best business with Europeans is at night after dinner. Every one is then sitting outside on the terraces or balconies overhanging the Bosporus. The ice man comes along in a boat and seems at once to supply a long felt want.—Constantinople Cor. London Telegraph.

A Story of Anthony Hope.

Anthony Hope Hawkins, always a believer in men of letters standing by each other, worked tremendously hard to help on the fund which the Authors' society of London is trying to accumulate, from which pensions are to be paid to authors whose literary merit has not brought them a corresponding income and who view increasing years with fear.

Once an unfortunate writer who visited Mr. Hawkins at his rooms in Buckingham street, by the Embankment gardens, exclaimed on leaving with something in his pocket, "Oh, sir, I feel that Providence must have sent me to you!"

And the reply came with a twinkle in his benefactor's eye, "Let us hope, however, that Providence will not acquire the habit of doing so."—Argonaut.

An Obstinate Maid.

Mr. Sappeigh—I wouldn't marry that Miss Gabby. She is terribly set in her ways.

Mr. Softleigh—Is that so?

Mr. Sappeigh—Yes, indeed. Why, she has refused me nine times.—Baltimore American.

I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrnoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy is for sale by F. Duhring. *

Thought It Was a Proposal.

Scene, cab stand near London. Lady, distributing tracts, hands one to cabby, who glances at it, hands it back and says politely, "Thank you, lady, but I'm a married man." Lady nervously looks at the title and, reading "Abide with me," hurriedly departs, to the great amusement of cabby.—Spare Moments.

The men-of-war of the Romans had a crew of about 225 men, of which 174 were oarsmen working on three decks. The speed of these vessels was about six miles an hour in fair weather.

Never mind who was your grandfather. Who are you?—Proverb.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The Best Prescription Is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The Formula Is Plainly Printed on Every Bottle, So That the People May Know Just What They Are Taking.

Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called "Tasteless" chill tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

H. H. GRANICE

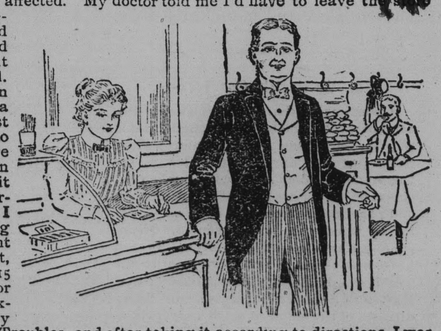
REAL ESTATE AGENT,

SONOMA CAL.

HOW CHARLES W. BABCOCK

Proprietor Lyceum Shell Oyster Parlor, of Rochester, N. Y. Obtained $2,000 Life Insurance Policy.

"My business as proprietor of the Lyceum Shell Oyster Parlor, 24[illegible] street, Rochester, N. Y.," writes Mr. Charles W. Babcock, "was so confining that my lungs became affected. My doctor told me I'd have to leave the house and go to work at something outdoors. He said my lungs were in bad shape, and I knew it just as well as he did. The trouble had been growing on me for a long time. Like most other people, I tried to make myself believe the trouble was not in the lungs. I called it stomach trouble or nervous disorder, but I kept coughing, spitting and wasting away right along. I lost in weight, falling from 140 to 115 pounds. Somehow or other, I got hold of Acker's English Remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, and after taking it according to directions, I was as well as any man in New York State. I was healthier and stronger than before I took the cold which came so near killing me. I now weigh 150 pounds—ten pounds more than ever. After recovering, I applied for a life insurance policy. When the doctor began examining me, I was afraid he would discover that my lungs had once been affected, but he didn't. I passed all right, and was pronounced in a first-class condition. If that isn't proof of the most positive kind that Acker's English Remedy is a great medicine, I don't know what you call proof. I give it my warmest endorsement. My address is given above. Anyone who wishes may write me personally about my case."



Sold at 25c., 50c. and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England, at 1s. 2d., 2s. 3d., 4s. 6d. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back.

We authorize the above guarantee. W. H. HOOKER & CO., Proprietors, New York.
